Capital City Public Charter School utilizes a blended learning platform that personalizes education for students through project-based instruction. This model allows teachers to identify resources and techniques that meet students' individual needs and provides students the opportunity to demonstrate content mastery, become more self-directed in their learning, and apply their skills in collaborative and real-life learning experiences and projects. Capital City has also developed a multifaceted professional development plan that helps instructors transition to this new model.
